

Hope Lutheran Church

October 2022

From the Pastor,

My family have owned a total of seven cats in our life time. We have three cats right now. Cats believe that they are the center of the universe. They have ways to get your attention in order to be the center of your universe. Our cats have even set up a pecking order of who is the center of the center of the universe in our home. To complicate our lives Saddie, the center of the center of the universe, has been diagnosed with diabetes on September 8th. She receives insulin shots every twelve hours. Our family schedule will now be determined around trying to keep her alive and well. Plans I was making for our anniversary next month were changed to accomodate the center of the center of our family universe. (written September 13th).

Today, September 15th, my cat, Saddie, died. We put her to sleep because she was not adjusting well to her diabetes treatment. Her quality of life was quickly digressing. But just because she is gone doesn't mean she will no longer be the center of the center of our family universe. The other two cats do not yet understand that she is no longer with us and not just hiding under the bed until it is time to remind everybody who is in charge and the true center of the center of the household universe.

The truth is Saddie was not the center of our family universe. God was and is. Our love for cats and children and each other came from the center of our lives both separate and as a couple. God's love for us in Jesus Christ informed our love for God which then extended to ourselves and our family. Love for cats or family that is not God-centered will be an unhealthy love for cats and family. Try explaining that to young children or cats. One can't. One can only struggle to keep Jesus at the center of one's life and universe no matter how noble or demanding your cat may be.

Pastor Jim
